Mrs. Smith.
 It's piteous the noise displayed in roll, it is (or was) one of the best! I really loved Spurs, and I think I learned a lot about my own feelings about helping others. It was a beautiful experience. Success is my wish for ~~your~~ your future rolls and classes. I will miss Roosevelt and it's teachers immensely. (sp?)

Faculty

The continuation and expansion of programs which had proved effective in the past kept Roosevelt's faculty responsive to the changing needs of students.

A new Language Learning Center was established in an annex to the library to provide more specialized instruction for students with certain language problems. With Room 204 as a new location for the Career Center, full use was made of the reservoir of college and career information the school has collected. Finally, a repetition of last year's new registration procedure minimized class scheduling problems and gave students freedom to choose classes, teachers, and periods.

Dear Mrs. Smith,

What a year I know it would have been very difficult for me to go through without the terrific Spur officers and you. I deeply admire you. Spurs was an experience I was blessed with, with its hurts, disappointments, and good achievements.

I learned so much!!

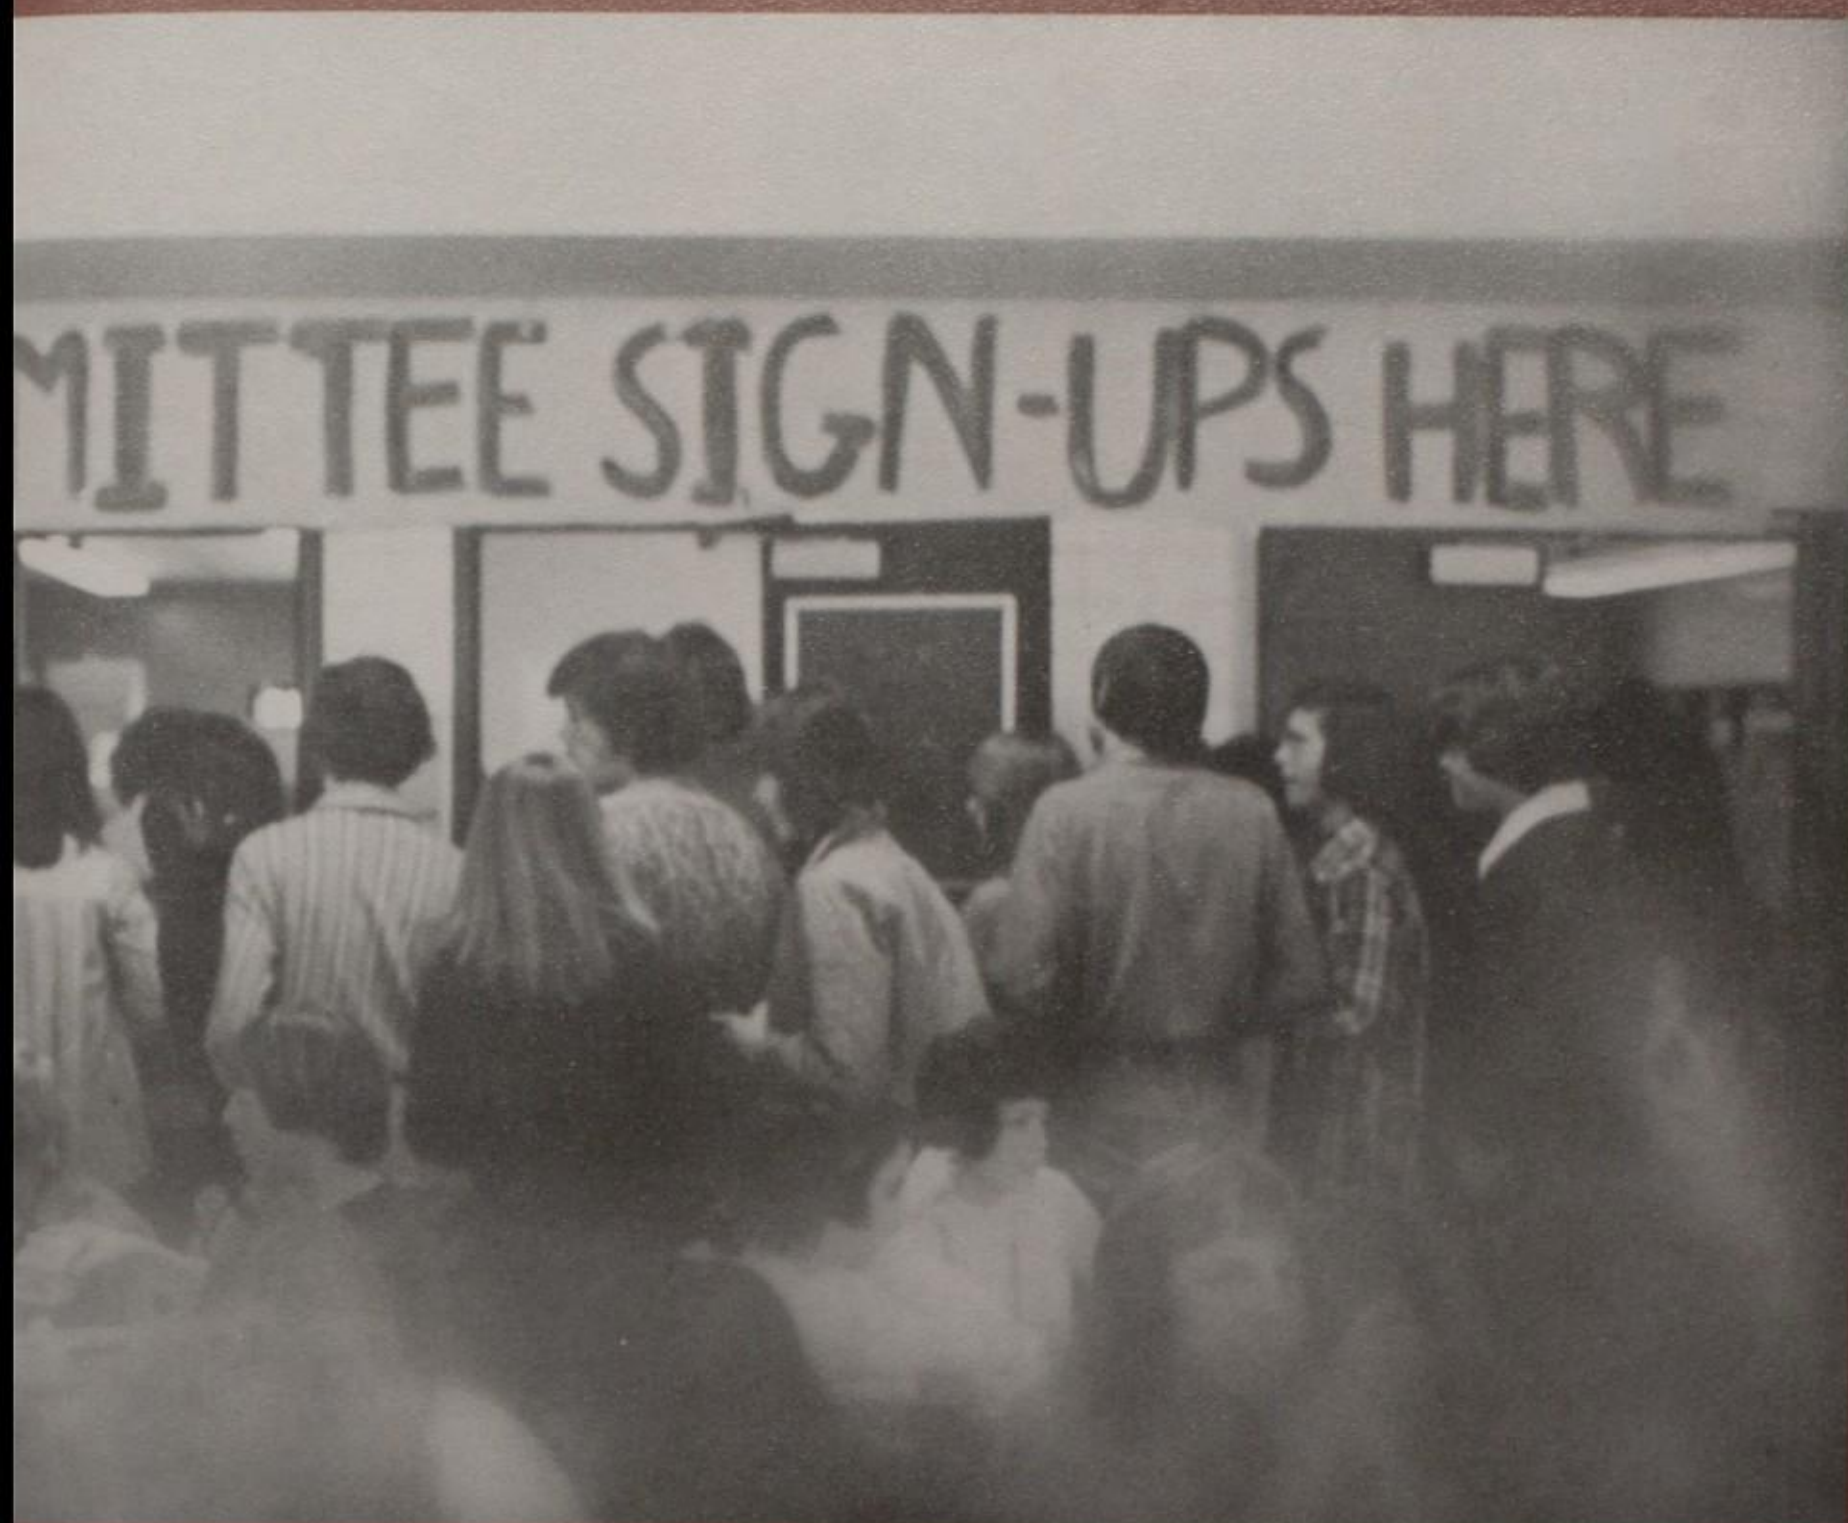

This year has been terrific for growth!

Love to you,

Elected leaders met daily fourth period in the Activity Center to oil the activities machine. Their progress was stalled early in the year due to production of photo I.D. cards, which were wallet space-savers, combining the uses of several cards into one.

A.S.R.'s busy year peaked in November, during Homecoming Week. Time was greased back, as "The Fifties" was the undeclared theme. Special assemblies, corsages, and Green-and-Gold Day all contributed to Homecoming spirit. The week's biggest event turned out to be Greaser Day, when leather-clad, bobby-socked, thoroughly greased daddios hung out in the lunchroom boppin' to Beach Boys tunes.

All was not fun and games, of course. At Christmastime, A.S.R. created "Operation Santa Claus", designed to brighten the holidays for needy families with food and gifts.

A.S.R. officers Dan Bor and Tim Ames set Greaser Day fashions.

Increased interest in ASR resulted in greater student participation in committees. Drives Committee aided United Way and Neighbors in Need, as well as overseeing the procurement of blood for the King County Bloodmobile. Fundraising Committee organized the Walkathon to expand ASR's financial resources. Poster Committee colored the halls, putting up posters to publicize school events. Meanwhile, in an effort to arouse student awareness, Environmental Committee brought guest speakers to Roosevelt to discuss the energy crisis.

Roosevelt goes on national television.

Classroom routine was broken by mini-courses, tutoring sessions, and assemblies. Held during study periods for three-day intervals, frequent mini-courses were possible. Enthusiasm among participants was high, with diverse subject matter ranging from karate to bread making. Tutoring Committee was in heavy demand throughout the year, with tutors and tutees totalling more than fifty persons. ASR and Underclass and Senior Class Cabinets coordinated assemblies.

Three groups at Roosevelt continued to spread understanding of different cultures. Junior Classical League was busy preserving our Roman heritage, hosting the Washington State JCL Convention, promoting involuntary servitude at the Slave Sale, and recalling the merriment of the heyday of Rome at the Roman Banquet. International Relations Club members shared knowledge of contemporary world cultures at a series of foreign dinners at students' homes, and directed the annual International Days program. Soulciety tried to solve cultural problems within Roosevelt through multi-racial rap sessions and workshops.

Hearts and hands

Nearly one-sixth of the Class of '74 devoted hours and effort to helping others. Fulfilling dreams of relieving the needy and befriending the lonesome, Golden Spurs worked on a regular basis at a tutoring agency, day care center, and recreational headquarters for the elderly. Besides assisting in school offices, Spurs activated canned food and United Way drives. Roughriders ushered at school functions, and collected funds for the handicapped with a basketball game. In monthly joint efforts, Spurs planned entertainment, while Ruffs provided transportation, for the handicapped. Proceeds from the annual Spruff carwash went to an overseas orphan.

Nancy Brown speaks out while Spurs eye the food at a weekly meeting.

Novelty was the rule as Girls' Club launched Caramel Apple, Candy Cane, St. Patrick's Lollipop, and Popsicle Sales. The conventional Pumpkin Carving Contest, Hollyberry Week, Mother-Daughter Dessert, and bake sales, however, were not forgotten. With the handicapped, Spades ventured on untrod territory, holding bowling parties and picnics. Benefits from the Christmas Stocking Sale went to the United Cerebral Palsy Center. Movie-showings sponsored by Torch Society were new on the scene, and met with success. Members were barraged with the familiar Torch pins and graduation cords.

After a triumphant practice round, the 'Quizathon' team went on the air to suffer an upsetting--but close--trouncing on KING-TV by Ingraham's Rams. One question cut short by the buzzer was the margin of defeat.

Debate Team trekked across the Northwest to test speaking abilities on the national forensic topic of a guaranteed annual minimum income. Blessed with the return of all but one letterman, the debaters qualified for the state finals.

Closer to home, the informally-organized Games Association met every week to polish their skills at Hearts, Risk, Go, and the like. Members of Chess Team fought for position on their boards. Their constant practice paid off later in Metro inter-high match victories.

People hand in hand
Have I lived to see the milk and honey land?
Where hate's a dream and love forever stands
Or is this a vision in my mind?

The law was never passed
But somehow all men feel they're truly free at last.
Have we really gone this far through space and time
Or is this a vision in my mind?

I'm not one who makes believe
I know that leaves are green
They only turn to brown when autumn comes around
I know just what I say
Today's not yesterday
And all things have an ending.

But what I'd like to know
Is could a place like this exist so beautiful
Or do we have to find our wings and fly away
To the vision in our mind?

This year has really been full of excitement and fun. There were many times your smile had a lot of deep meanings to me and made me feel so much better. You are such a sincere person, way more than I can imagine anyone to be. Spurs has given me a wider view of life and helped me to love others no matter what they look like. The handicapped center made me so thankful to be normal or at least without a handicapped. I must admit Spurs wasn't all fun but even though we were hurt, disappointed and let down it gave us many lasting memories. Eating donuts, lifesavers, cakes, pop, laughing, crying and taking seriously. We did them all and all in first class. Thanks so much for your help and thoughtfulness. I know we wouldn't have made it without you. Next year after I've been in If only I could have a friend who'd stick with me until the end And walk along beside the sea and share a bit of moon with me I'd take my friend most everywhere, I wouldn't care But we would stay away from crowds back and let you know With signs that said no friends allowed. how I feel. I have my doubts but I'm really looking forward to it too. Our talks were really rewarding and interesting to hear. We'd be so happy to be together. Isn't it important and great we all have our own opinions. Good Luck But dreams are nothing more than wishes next year with Spurs And a wish is just a dream you wish to come true. and don't forget us.

You look around you, things they astound you,
so breath in deep, you're not asleep,
open your mind, you're here today, no future fears,
this day will last a thousand years, if you want it to.

You understand that all over this land there is a feeling. That minds far and near things are becoming clear, to the feeling.

Now that you're knowing, pleasures start flowing,
it's true that life flies faster than eyes could ever see.

You're here today, no future fear, this day will last a thousand years, if you want it to.

Dear Mrs. Smith—
 I sincerely want to thank you for the time you spent individually with me. I really appreciate the advice and criticism. Out of all for the LA teachers I had you by far have been the most stimulating. I know I have been for from the ideal student as far as attendance went; I hope you didn't take that personally.
 Just too many things to take care of. Thanks so much!

Sincerely,
 Jim, 74

Clap your hands, stamp your feet,

Dashed dreams

Dale Ballard—the picture of exhaustion.

It was indeed a tough season for the Roughriders, as the dreams of September faded into a veritable nightmare by November. With an eye on the Metro Crown, the Teds romped to a 4-1 early season record, but injuries to key players and a muddy loss to Shoreline foreshadowed the disastrous three-game losing spree that eventually tumbled the Teds to fifth place. Even in defeat, Coach Art Wiper could find a bit of solace, as a talented group of juniors return next season with a crack at the 1974 Metro Crown.

Differing degrees of success

During the year of the gas shortage the powerful Roosevelt Swim Team didn't run short. The Teds sunk all opponents on their way to another Metro title. The Riders, however, did keep their fans at the edge of their seats by participating in many close meets, and won the championship by only nine points.

1973 was not a year to remember for Roosevelt's Cross Country Squad. Managing three victories in regular season competition, Coach Bill Ross' runners were disqualified on a technicality in the North finals, and then went on to a disappointing showing in the Metro finals. Built around two brothers, Martin and Mike Osborne, the team retained a strong nucleus for the fall of 1974.

Depth was lacking on the 1974 Wrestling Team, as graduation took its toll in many weight classes. The grapplers managed to pin down four victories in thirteen tries. Offsetting a disappointing team record were outstanding individual performances by senior Ted Parker, junior Craig Murakami, and freshman Kirk Ishida.

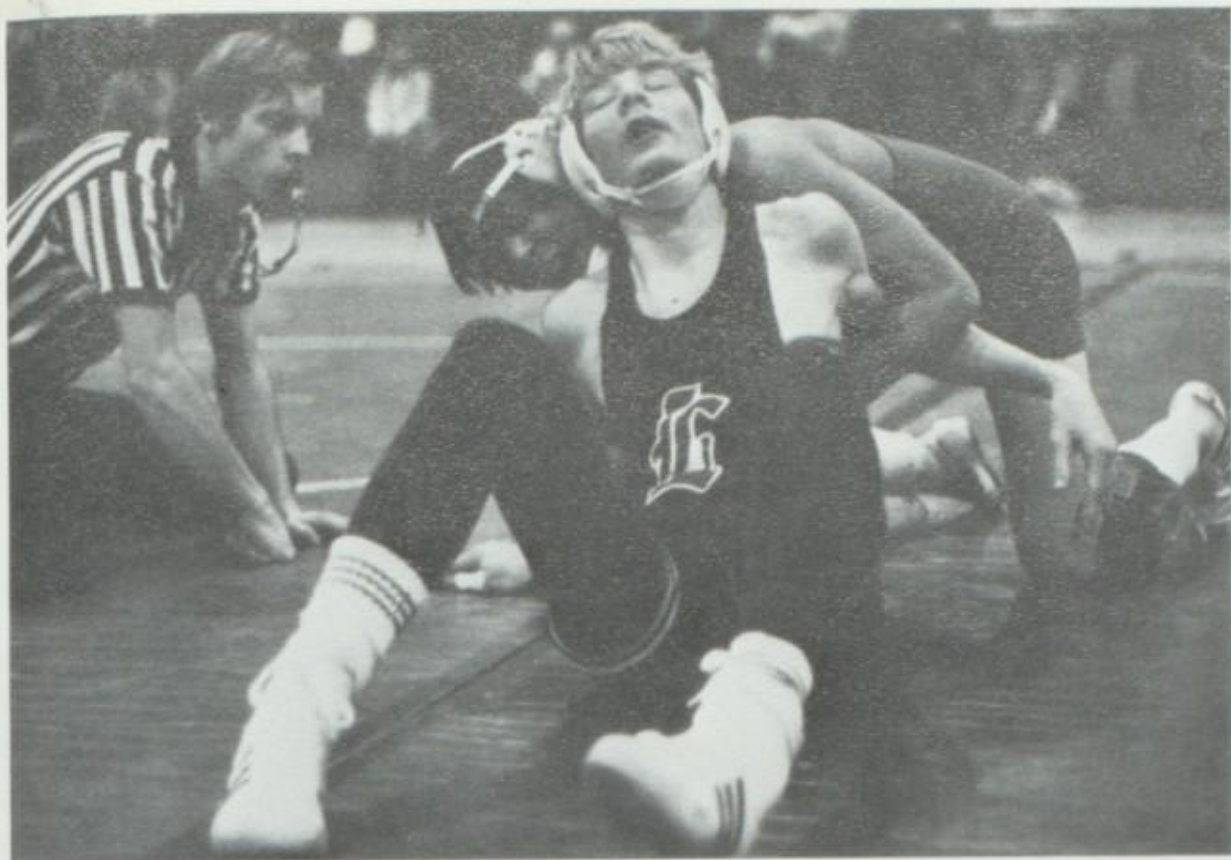

Inexperience was also a problem for gymnasts. Ronald Frey's team members bounced and swung their way through a late spring season, and hopes for success were placed on individuals Kurt Gloyer, Larry Watanabe, and Dan Shipe.

Third in North

Although unable to repeat another year as State Champions, Roosevelt remained an extremely competitive basketball club. The team, not regarded highly in the preseason predictions, came on to surprise everyone by being in the middle of the North's title race, finally finishing third. The style of play had to be changed with a quicker, smaller team replacing last year's height. Able to deliver most of the year in the "big" games, Roosevelt finally succumbed to the Ingraham Rams in the Metro playoffs. Highlights of the season included victories over Ballard and Ingraham, and with the Junior Varsity Team finishing 9-7, prospects for next year's team looked hopeful.

Feminine fortitude fared fairly fruitfully in the fall for Roosevelt's girls' sports, as the quality of the girls' athletic program continued to improve through increased finances, attention, and participation. The girls' tennis team was a particular standout, racketing up a 7-1 win-loss record and placing Lorrie Frost and Ann Boreson at the top of the Metro singles ladder. Volleyballers netted a respectable record, 6-8, and looked to a powerful J.V. squad for future hopes. 1973 was definitely a rebuilding year for girls' cross country. Roosevelt's harriettes managed only one victory in five tries.

In pursuit of excellence

Willing women worked without waste in winter and spring athletics. Basketball finished a strong third in Metro, sparked by the playmaking of Captain Nancy Brown. Gymnastics finished second in Metro, captured third in the Regionals, and went to State as a team. Christy Tupper placed first in both Metro and Regionals on the parallel bars. A large turnout helped make the Girls Track Team outstanding. Stand-out performances were turned in by freshman Debbie Adams, sophomore Dixie Reimer, and senior Toni Belcher.

Soccer: a spring thing

Adjusting to change proved to be the principal challenge to the Soccer Team. New coach Lyle Miller directed the Ted booters, playing in the spring for the first year. Thrust out of Roosevelt's field by other spring sports, the team was forced to practice at Wilson Middle School, four miles away. Kicking problems away, the booters fared well in a preseason Metro tournament, winning three games out of four. Blessed with many returning lettermen, the team entered regular season play with high hopes. The goal: the Metro championship.

Different strokes

Optimism grew prevalent on both the tennis and golf teams as spring turnouts served to iron out early-season problems. The graduation of many seniors left the tennis team with a lack of experience, but a new crop of juniors led by Keith Bolton, Dane Ravenholt, Mike Brazier, and Scott Eden were left unfazed. Golf team, amply experienced with returning lettermen Bob Albert, Neal Ratti, and Dean Odle was confident it would putt opponents in their place.

Rough going

Late-inning dejection betrays a losing bench.

One of the more disastrous won-loss records in recent years over-shadowed several highlights of the Baseball Team's season. New flashy gold uniforms brightened the team's presence on the field, and "Jugs", an automatic curveball pitching machine tried to bolster a sagging team batting average. In spite of new purchases, however, first-year Head Coach Marvin Morris' Baseballers could salvage only one victory and one tie in division play. An eighteen inning scoreless marathon against Shoreline and a 1-0 late-season victory over Hale broke the monotony of losing and brought worth from months of work.

A knack for track

In a typical rebuilding year, individual performances overshadowed team accomplishments for Roosevelt Track, coached by Bill Ross. Particularly outstanding efforts were recorded by Gary Namba, undefeated in the 100-yard dash, senior Robert Pierce in the high jump, and Gary West in the shot put.

Two underclassmen that particularly came on during the season were Jeff Jones in the hurdles and Marty Osborne, the inspirational winner, who recorded his best time of the season in the mile, a 4:42 during the North Division Finals. This, combined with the departure of only a few seniors, makes prospects for next year outstanding.

The tradition of supporting Roosevelt's athletic teams was sustained and enlarged by the 1973-74 Song Leaders, Yell Leaders, and Sportsboosters. Participating at a summer camp in Ellensburg, practicing daily at school, and attending competitions of all school sports, Song and Yell Leaders aroused spark and spirit, win or lose, in athletes and spectators throughout the year.

Sportsboosters, meanwhile, worked behind the scenes, coordinating the Guardian Angel program. G.A.s secretly kept their athletes fueled with plenty of food and encouragement.

The already powerful sound of Concert/Marching Band was reinforced by incorporating Roosevelt-M players among Roosevelt-R players. Halftime appearances at home football games featured intricate formations to the beat of popular tunes. The end of the football season brought on-stage experience at the Hollyberry and Spring Concerts.

Stage Band performed at basketball games and special assemblies. Exuberant style in the playing of jazz gained honors for the contemporary musicians in competition at the Clark College, Olympic, and Metro Jazz Festivals.

A third group, new to Roosevelt, was Jazz Trio. The threesome accompanied Vocal Jazz Ensemble and competed in the Reno Jazz Festival.

Roosevelt's choirs worked at home and afar to make each of the year's performances a resounding achievement.

Mr. Doug Manning's first year as Concert Choir Director was a harmonious blend of hard work and melody. A concert was presented at Green Lake Plaza as a Christmas bonus for appreciative senior citizens. A guest group, the Bozeman, Montana, High School Choir, compared notes with the Roosevelt singers in a March assembly.

Vocal Jazz Ensemble was invited to share the Coliseum floor with singer Lou Rawls, performing a Quincy Jones composition at the Seattle Sonics' home opener. The choir also participated in the Reno Jazz Festival, and traversed the state in May to appear at Spokane's Expo '74. Vocal Jazz's sound encompassed the old and new, and the traditional and avant-garde, including several arrangements by group members.

Annual

The production of a masterpiece in pictures and words was the ultimate goal of the 1973-74 Annual Staff. The dream was deferred every so often by missing pictures and expensive goofs, but the year-long task of constructing Strenuous Life 1974 proceeded without significant hindrance. After a lot of hard work, great care, downright hassles, and mostly, a lot of fun, Annual Staff presents this, the fifty-first edition of Strenuous Life.

"Don't let me hear anything about your sickness—you selfish old man." (Barbara Long, Enid Gilbert, Phil Jordan)

all of you come out!"

On the evenings of November 30 and December -1, Roosevelt presented its fall production, Look Homeward, Angel. Adapted by Ketti Frings from Thomas Wolfe's novel, the play centers around Eugene Gant, a sensitive 17 year-old boy. His home is Dixieland Boarding House, owned by Eliza, his domineering mother, and inhabited (according to W.O. Gant, Eugene's father) by "boarding house swine." Deeply affected by the death of his brother, Ben, and the departure of Laura, the object of his first love affair, Eugene sets off for college bewildered by the mysteries of life.

Student Directors: Rick Wilson, Pam Windsor, and Karen Gross.

"I am not drunk, I am in a wild, blind fury!"

"Welcome home, Luke!" (Mike Dennison)

"Spoon River Anthology"

by Edgar Lee Masters, directed by Paul Kidder. This composite of forty monologues tells a story about small town morality through the voices of the town's dead. The ghosts gossip freely, winding through the underground currents that filled the social structure of Spoon River, Illinois. Cast: Joanne Radmore, Warren Lincoln, Steve Christofferson, Mary Guterson, Lynda Barry, John Pletcher. Stage Manager: Brian Moore. Assistant Director: Kate Skellenger.

Drama Festival 1974

Fears and frustrations were the forerunners of the fine finished product—1974's Drama Festival. Student directors, members of the Drama VI-VII class, chose the plays, selected the casts, and organized their individual productions, while Karen Gross, company manager, and Miss Norma Wills co-ordinated the program. Eight plays were performed after school March 18-21. That Friday night the three plays judged best were presented, and directors and actors were awarded for outstanding efforts.

"Black Comedy"

by Peter Schaffer, directed by Carolyn Edson. A theatrical switch is pulled by reversing light and dark in this comical farce. A young sculptor attempts to impress his fiancée's father, sell his artwork to a millionaire, and prevent the appearance of his mistress, when the lights go out. Cast: Dave Bailey, Terri Leonard, Barb Long, Jeff Abbit, Neil Hubbard, Meg Norton, Ari Steinberg. Stage Managers: Rick Nugent, Kelly Thomas. Technical Assistant: Alice Etherington.

"Next"

by Terrence McNally, directed by John Rieber. "Next!" involves two reactions to a situation about a forty-ish businessman who receives a draft notice, discovers a lady examining officer, and tries every imaginable way to fail his examination. "What is your responsibility to your country?" The endings of the two scenes are different; one satirical and one deadly serious. Cast: John Steckler, Mary Jane Mucklestone, Kristin Nelson, Chuck Wolfe. Stage Manager: Rick Tiedeman. Technical Assistant: Michele Galstad.

"Good-Bye to the Clown"

by Ernest Kinoy, directed by Ann Hedreen. Peggy (Angie Brown) has been getting into trouble at school for the pranks her imaginary playmate, The Clown (Terri Belcher) plays. When she comes to the realization that The Clown is only a replacement for her dead father, she bids him farewell. Others: Theresa Eck, John Stanley, Ilsa Rieman, Kay West. Stage Manager: Garnett Brooks. Technical Assistant: Linda Jeffries.

"Waiting for Godot"

by Samuel Beckett, directed by David Bever. Two bums fill in their days as they wait for Godot, a person who will either explain their interminable insignificance or put an end to it. Cast: David Guterson, Scott Coney, Tony Dash, Julie Lewis, Mike Weinstein. Stage Managers: David Guterson, Bliss Kolb, Paul Bagshaw.

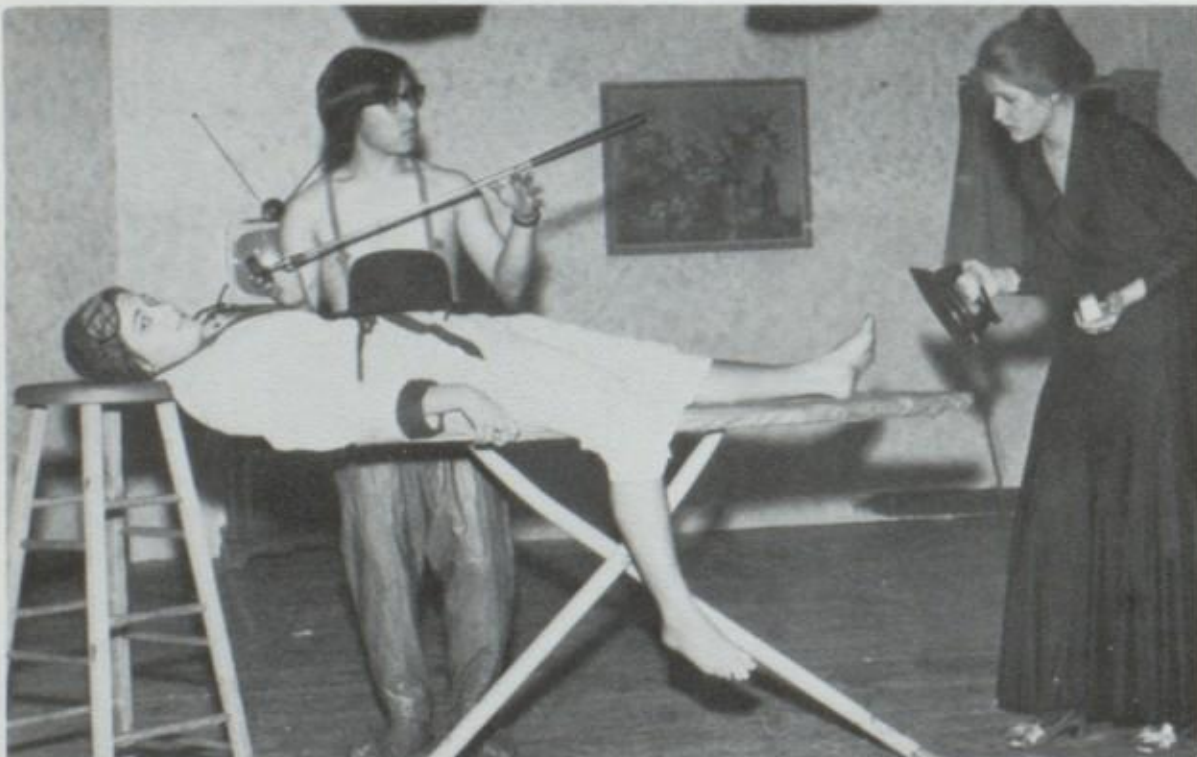

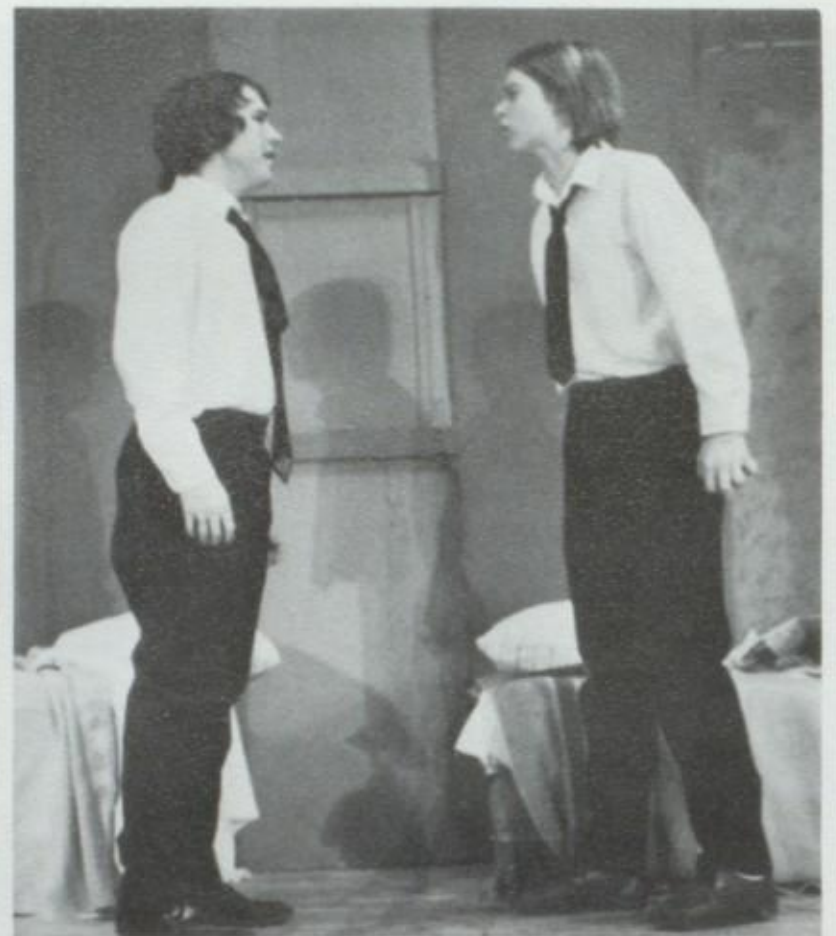

"Adaptation"

by Elaine May, directed by Phillip Jordan. A TV game show is the setting for the life of Phil Benson, a hotel manager who tries to find "security" that is concealed on the gameboard of his existence. Cast: Rick Wilson, Brian Waite, Tim Clark, Joan Erickson, Kam Youell. Stage Manager: Mike Lantz. Technical Assistant: Mary Clinton.

"The Dumb Waiter"

by Harold Pinter, directed by Mike Dennison. Two hired gunmen, Gus (Rob Burgess) and Ben (Jeff Edfast) await their victim in a decayed lodging house. Tension mounts, and when the victim finally bursts through the doors, it is Gus. Stage Manager: Darrel Peterson. Technical Assistant: Steve Reed.

"The Crippled Minstrel Caper"

directed by Enid Gilbert. A family's routine is disturbed by a bumbling police officer who accuses them of monstrous crimes. The situation illustrates the absurdities of everyday living, and the problems that arise from the different ways that people perceive things. Cast: Jay Reinhardt, Tom Seoh, Elizabeth Dempsey, Sue Aronson, Phil Herold. Stage Managers: Ari Steinberg, Gayle Ducey.

You are the answer;
quivering branches,
shifting sighs.
I, the question;

You are the mirror;
I, the reflection.

Paul Kidder presents a manuscript for consideration.

Alex Hsu, Lynda Barry, and Mrs. Bryan indulge in Lab Writer's informal atmosphere.

Each Monday, Lab Writer Board got together to gather together submissions of Roosevelt's best creative writing and artwork. Selections were accepted or rejected by a vote of the board, and the final product appeared in May, financed by a spring cakewalk.

Oh, wasn't it lovely?

My Fair Lady was presented by the Musical Productions department on May 9, 10, and 11. The tale concerns Eliza Doolittle (Venise Jones), a poor London flower girl, and Henry Higgins (Rick Wilson), the phonetics professor who attempts to refine her. Other leads included Higgins' associate Colonel Pickering (Phil Jordan), and Eliza's father Alfred Doolittle (Warren Lincoln). The musical My Fair Lady was adapted by Alan Jay Lerner and Fredrick Lowe from George Bernard Shaw's play, Pygmalion.

Lillian Britain, Roosevelt's veteran musical producer, directed the show. Vocal direction was handled by Doug Manning. The orchestra was conducted by Ronald Taylor, and Mike Ingersoll was the choreographer.

Thanks for the life savers - I don't know but I did - Root beer forever! I'll come

Mrs. Smith -
Although we have shared

Dear Mrs Smith, I'm really glad that I had taken your class, it has really helped me in ~~some~~ so many ways. I believe your the best L.A. teacher I've had. I'm sorry that I didn't get to know you better, but I know, if my brother comes to 2005. Remember, always remember. Remember he will the whole of the truth. Truth has so many sign upsides, evil and good, that if you cling to just one, it may make it a lie.

 for your smiles

 being yourself. I feel that I leave

... a gallery of the end of an era.
 A goal has been reached; twelve years
 Of step-by-step progression culminate here.
 Look back through the faces.
 They are about all we carry through to the next era:
 Memories of good times, hilarious times,
 Of somber moments.
 Where do we go from here?
 Let these fragments of the past
 And our dreams
 Determine our path.

The vision is the foundation for attempts to better our world;

our time gains through the devotion of men to the vision:
